

THE INCLUSIVIST'S LIFE: AN INTERGENERATIONAL CONVERSATION TO GUIDE ANTIRACIST LEARNING & ACTION

Presenter: Gretchen Cook-Anderson, an award-winning Director of Diversity Recruiting & Advising at IES Abroad

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 2020
7:00 PM TO 9:00 PM EDT

Our audience size is unlimited with 5 featured voluntary intergenerational pairs of participants

If interested in being a pair contact NPFHChair@gmail.com by September 21st and for audience registration click here

This virtual workshop on zoom focuses on the power of conversations about antiracism between participants of varying generations as well as other identities. We encourage but don't require each guest to invite a grandchild, parent, grandparent, niece, cousin, neighbor, friend, or anyone you're well acquainted with from another generation to join you for this virtual event. Ideally guests who attend the event can follow up with one another after the event to keep the conversation going.

We need 5 voluntary pairs of participants to have a discussion live on screen in brief conversation with one another. Each pair will respond to a sample question, video clip, image, or quote. Others will have ample opportunity to ask questions or offer comments or ideas for taking the conversations further after the live workshop. If interested contact NPFHChair@gmail.com

The workshop will also include an intro presentation to first ground and then launch the conversation, tips for active listening, and approaches to kick off and sustain productive conversations on difficult topics that are often the basis for antiracist learning and action .

This virtual event is free and open to the public!